

Get HALLOWEEN PRICE TREAT, half-price admission for costumed kids at Botanical Gardens, October 31!

CORPUS CHRISTI—Kids ages three to 12, dressed in their Halloween costumes, can visit the South Texas Botanical Gardens & Nature Center for half-price admission, just $2.50, Saturday, October 31, when accompanied by an adult. All floral, parrot and reptile exhibits, trails and wetland areas are open for guests.

“Since Halloween opportunities may be limited this year, we’re offering another costume opportunity for kids on Halloween Day,” explained Executive Director Michael Womack. “Adults may join the dress-up fun, but will pay regular admission, unless members, who always are admitted free,” added Marketing Director MaryJane Crull.

Health and safety protocols will be observed, including six-foot social distancing indoors and out. Indoors, masks covering nose and mouth are required for all over age two. Hand sanitizer is available at check-in.

The Botanical Gardens is open daily, 9 am to 6 pm. Adult general admission is $9; while seniors age 60 and up, active military, and college students are $7. (Halloween discount not available on-line.) For more information, call 361-852-2100.
